One of the skills we have to develop as we get older is to be able to see things from both sides even if it's not something we agree with. We have to be able to debate a topic and explain why we think or feel a certain way.

We'd like you to look at the question below:

Can you write both sides of this argument?

You need to explain why some people might think yes and some might think no.

We look forward to seeing your work.
